Art Unit: 2852

DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. The information disclosure statement filed 6-27-2003 has been considered.

Drawings

3. The formal drawings are approved by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in-

- (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or
- (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

5. Claims 1-4, 6-8, 12-15, and 17-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Omoto et al. (6,584,298). The magnetic core provided so as to be related to at least a part of a magnetic field generation means by Omoto et al. teaches a based material having dispersed magnetic material (Figure 2). The magnetic particle is at least one of iron powder, ferrite powder, and magnetite powder (column 9, line 47 - column 10, line 24). The base material is a solidified hydraulic composition. The magnetic core is placed on the periphery of the coil serving as the magnetic field generation means (Figure 3). A transformer is obtained by winding at least two coils at different positions of the magnetic core. The magnetic field generation means is a part of an electrical device.

Omoto et al. teaches a magnetic field shield member provided on the periphery of a magnetic field generation means for generating a magnetic field and shielding the magnetic field generated by the magnetic field generation means, wherein magnetic particles are arranged in a base material under a dispersed state (column 10, lines 12-24).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

8. Claims 9-11 and 20-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Omoto et al. in view of Sakagami (JP2002-72722A). Omoto et al. does not teach a magnetic field generating means that is placed close to one of a fixing and a pressurizing body.

Sakagami teaches a magnetic field generating means that is placed close to one of the fixing and pressurizing bodies. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the teaching of Sakagami for placing the magnetic generating means close to one of the fixing and pressurizing body as is known in the art to ensure even surface temperature (Sakagami: abstract: lines 1-7).

Prior Art of Record

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Maeyama (6,195,525); Suzuki et al. (6,699,550); and Yamaguchi (5,666,627) teaches pertinent prior art.

Allowable Subject Matter

10. Claims 5 and 16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
